The Party Resume their Journey Toward Memphis.

The President's Tour.

Kansas City, October 13.—[illegible] President Cleveland's [illegible] Mrs. Cleveland [illegible] only just moved [illegible] The expression [illegible] through the streets in carriages [illegible] morning. With [illegible] residences and [illegible] the enormous commerce which [illegible] here observed on every hand [illegible] were everywhere evidences of [illegible] The streets in many places were torn up and building operations seemed almost everywhere in progress. The president's conductors pointed [illegible] features with pride. They [illegible] enough to carry the visitors and [illegible] committee of eleven gentlemen were provided and these were preceded and followed by a small but sufficient troop of cavalry.

The party set out from the hotel amid cheers of the multitude, and made its way rapidly through the western portion of the town without stopping until it reached the bluffs already in the city. From this point the bluff falls away precipitously to the lower town, three hundred feet below. Immediately beneath stretched the five or six square miles of railroad yards, and as the president's carriage made its appearance on the brow of the hill every locomotive of all the fifteen roads centering here opened its throat and screamed. The concert was led by a nasty looking engine whose tones by some manipulation were exactly like [illegible] only multiplied to [illegible] dimensions. The president's attention was called to the great area lying beyond the railroad yards covered by mammoth packing houses and establishments for the sale of agricultural implements.

[illegible] the exposition building but the president did not alight. From thence the party proceeded to the site of the projected new Y. M. C. A. building, corner of Ninth and Locust streets, of which the president laid the corner stone. This ceremony was preceded by singing of hymns and a [illegible] prayer by Bishop Hendrix. The president's remarks on the occasion were as follows:

[illegible] we are apt to neglect the instrumentalities which are quietly but [illegible] doing a most important service in moulding our national character. Among those and challenging but little notice [illegible] with their [illegible] results are the Young Men's Christian associations scattered throughout the country. All will admit the supreme importance of that honesty and [illegible] which rest upon Christian [illegible] all will acknowledge the sad and [illegible] tempting allurements which beset our young men and lure them to destruction. [illegible] save these young men, often [illegible] deprived of the restraints of home, from degradation and ruin and fit them for usefulness and honest lives, these associations have entered their field of Christian effort and are pushing their noble work. When [illegible] results of their efforts are to be [illegible] good or evil in the next generation [illegible] worldly prudence dictates that these associations should be aided and encouraged. Their increase and flourishing condition reflect the highest honor upon the good men who have devoted themselves to the work and demonstrate that the American people are not lacking in appreciation of its value. Twenty years ago but one of these associations owned a building and that was valued at only $10,000. To-day more than one hundred such buildings valued at more than $5,000,000 beautify different cities of our land and beckon our young men to lives of usefulness. I am especially pleased to be able to participate to-day in the laying of the corner stone of another of these edifices in this active and growing city. I trust the encouragement given the Young Men's Christian Association located here may be commensurate with its assured usefulness and in keeping with the generosity and intelligence which characterize the people of Kansas City.

While the ceremonies were in progress a corps of pickpockets who have followed the presidential party throughout its tour, industriously plied their art. One of these gentry, a florid well built though rather heavy man, was discovered by his victim in the act, just too late, however, to prevent the robbery. [illegible] Catch that man [illegible] the impressive proceedings for a [illegible] A man was seen to dash from the crowd, fall off a stone wall, knock over one or two women and rush [illegible] with three or four policemen after him. The outcome was not learned and when the laying of the corner stone was completed the president and party went to their hotel where an hour was given to lunch.

In the afternoon the president and Mrs. Cleveland were escorted through the business streets of the city to the government building, where they arrived about [illegible] o'clock. They were escorted out upon the front portion, where a stand had been erected, facing a crowd of fully 25[illegible]

The Knights' Assembly.

Minneapolis, October 13.—In the Knights of Labor general assembly to-day the eight hour question in the cigar [illegible] The [illegible] International Cigar Makers' union [illegible] right for Knights of Labor [illegible] to work fewer hours. It was [illegible] to those who work [illegible] hours.

It is stated that the convention yesterday voted to continue the boycott on the New York Sun.

The Fourth Game.

Pittsburg, October 13.—Detroit won the fourth [illegible] of the world's championship [illegible] played here to-day. The victory was an easy one for the league champions, who nevertheless played a wonderful game, shutting St. Louis out. King pitched for the Browns, and was batted very freely from the start, Detroit scoring four runs in the first inning. St. Louis made only two hits off of Baldwin, magnificent fielding cutting off many hits of the Browns. In the first inning Richardson's liner to left passed O'Neill and he made second. Ganzel and Rowe went out, but Thompson's hit passed Robinson for a double and Richardson scored. Dunlap made a [illegible] and stole to second, and on Bennett's single to left White and Dunlap scored. Hanlon retired the side. Latham for the Browns fouled out. Gleason died on first and O'Neill's [illegible] past Dunlap, but Comiskey struck out. Detroit scored again in the second on a hit, an out, a passed ball and a wild throw of Gleason's, in the [illegible] on Dunlap's three-bagger [illegible] and twice in the sixth on an error of Gleason and a steal, a three-bagger by Rowe, a passed ball and Thompson's single. The Browns got only one man as far as third. Batteries—St. Louis [illegible] the fifth inning. The fielding of White, Dunlap and Rowe, and Thompson's batting were the features of the game. Score—Detroit 4, St. Louis 0. Batteries—Baldwin and King. Base hits—Detroit 12, St. Louis 2. Errors—Detroit 1, St. Louis 6. Umpires—Kelly and Gaffney.

American Bankers' Convention.

Pittsburg, October 13.—A number of additional delegates attended to-day's session of the American Bankers' association. Many resolutions chiefly [illegible] to more federal and state enactments favorable to bankers were [illegible] but which no action were referred to the executive council of the association. The nominating committee reported a list of proposed officers for the ensuing year. The ticket was headed by the name of Logan C. Murray, New York, for president. Papers on various subjects were read by C. P. Williams of [illegible] Elliot F. Shepard of New York, Henry M. Knox of Minnesota, H. B. Wilson of Ohio and Beruhr Walkins of Ohio.

The report of the committee on silver was [illegible] The committee said: The American bankers association has already taken the ground that [illegible] paper and gold are required as money of the world, but that an international agreement [illegible] on the part of a majority of the chief commercial nations of the world can practically settle the question of the relative value of gold and silver [illegible] The report refers to the [illegible] of foreign powers, and [illegible] that the coinage of silver dollars by the United States be suspended until the points at issue in the silver question shall be settled by international agreement. The report was adopted.

General Kilpatrick's Remains Returned.

New York, October 13.—The steamer Newport for Aspinwall having the remains of the late General Kilpatrick on board was docked early this morning. Mrs. Kilpatrick and her two daughters, who accompanied the body, went to a hotel. A number of friends of the deceased were on deck when the boat arrived. It was at first supposed the remains would be interred in the family plot at Deckertown, N. J., but Mrs. Kilpatrick informed the gentlemen interested in the funeral arrangements that it was the general's wish to have the body laid at rest in the United States military cemetery at Washington. General Sherman has volunteered to speak at the funeral.

A Desperate Burglar.

Fond du Lac, Wis., October 13.—A shocking crime was committed near the limits of town early this morning. An unknown burglar entered the residence of Mr. William Rockne and four daughters. He was not discovered till he attempted to [illegible] and assault upon one of the women. Unsuccessful in this, he attacked the five women with a club, nearly killing all of them. The walls and floor of the house are spattered with [illegible] and everything indicates that a terrible struggle was made by the frail women. The assailant secured $3 and escaped after first threatening his [illegible] with immediate death if they made an outcry. A reward has been offered for his detection. The unfortunate victims are lingering between life and death.

The Insane Asylum Horror.

Cleveland, O., October 13.—One more charred body was taken from the ruins of the chapel of the Northern Ohio Insane asylum this morning. This increases the list of dead to seven. Three bodies are not positively identified as yet. The injured inmates are doing as well as can be expected and all may recover. Three escaped patients were captured this morning and only two are unaccounted for. The coroner is making an investigation.

Dominion Over Behring Sea.

Ottawa, Ontario, October 13.—The government here is in receipt of advices from Sitka which contain the brief understood to have been prepared in Washington and filed in the court at Sitka by A. D. Delaney as counsel for the United States in the latter's claim of exclusive dominion over Behring sea as brought out in the existing seal fisheries dispute. Delaney takes the position that Behring sea is not a portion of the open or high sea, but is an inland water cut off from the ocean and essentially land locked. The assertion that the United States upholds the idea of a mare clausum in the Atlantic ocean and opposes the same idea in the Pacific is disposed of by Delaney as follows: Concerning the doctrine of international law establishing what is known as the marine league belt, which extends the jurisdiction of a nation into adjacent seas for the distance of one marine league or three miles from its shores, and following all the indentations and sinuosities of its coast, there is at this day no room for discussion. It must be accepted as the settled law of nations is sustained by the highest authority of law writers and jurists. It has been sanctioned by the United States since the foundation of the government. Well grounded as is this doctrine of the law of nations it is no more firmly established as part of the international code than that other principle which gives to a nation supreme jurisdiction and dominion over its own land, waters, gulfs, bays and seas. If a sea is entirely enclosed by the territory of a nation and has no other communication with the ocean than by a channel of which that nation may take possession, it appears that such a sea is no less capable of being occupied and becoming property than the land and it ought to follow the fate of the country that surround [illegible] The Mediterranean, in former times, was absolutely enclosed within the territories of the Romans, and that people by rendering themselves master of the strait which joins it to the ocean, might subject the Mediterranean to their empire and assume the dominion over it. They did not by such proceedings injure the rights of other nations in particular, an inland sea being manifestly designed by nature for the use of the countries and nations that surround it.

Delaney then makes numerous references to prove that Russia always asserted that Behring sea was an inland water and that the United States has always maintained that position since she acquired [illegible] The [illegible] how Russia's title was based on "discovery and settlement," and how the United States acquired its title by treaty between the United States and Russia. As [illegible] to the questions involved in the case the treaty is quoted in full. In conclusion, Delaney says: "The foregoing record may convey but a meagre idea of the indomitable energy and perseverance displayed by the Russian people in acquiring empire in North America, beginning with the discoveries of Behring in 1732 and extending for more than a century and a quarter, wherein they braved the perils of land and sea, overcame the savage native population, faced ice and snow storm and shipwreck to found and maintain an empire on these rugged [illegible] Travers has [illegible] said to disclose the basis of Russia's right to jurisdiction of Behring sea under the law of nations, viz.: original possession of the Asiatic coast, followed by the discovery and possession of the Aleutian chain and the shores of Alaska north not only to Behring straits but to Point Barrow and the frozen ocean, thus inclosing within its territory as within the embrace of a giant the islands and waters of Behring sea, and with this the assertion and exercise of dominion over land and sea. Such is our understanding of the law, such is the record. Upon them the United States are prepared to abide the judgments of the courts and the opinion of the civilized world.

To Utilize the Surplus.

Washington, October 13.—The treasury department has under favorable consideration a proposition to extend to depository banks in Boston, Philadelphia and other large cities the privilege recently granted such banks in New York, of holding public funds to the amount of 110 per cent of their bond deposits and increase the maximum amount held to $1,000,000. A few New York banks have already signified their purpose of depositing bonds sufficient to secure the sum mentioned. Secretary Fairchild is known to favor this plan of utilizing the surplus.

A Case of Contract Labor.

New York, October 13.—U. S. District Attorney Walker decided to-day that the case of Rev. E. Walpole Warren recently called from England to the rectorship of the church of the Holy Trinity, comes under the "contract labor law," and that he will be forced to commence suit against the vestry and wardens of the church.

The history of this case is in brief as follows: Some months ago a Scotch farmer named Cummings came to this country under contract, and was refused permission to land on the ground that it

The French Army Scandal.

Paris, October 13.—The council of generals which was appointed for the purpose of trying General Caffarel on the charges preferred against him of selling [illegible] the accused guilty of [illegible] able misconduct. It was decided [illegible] council to place Caffarel on the retired list of the army. The decree for the execution of the decision was [illegible] by General Ferron, minister of war, to President Grévy for signature.

General Ferron telegraphed to General Boulanger at Mont [illegible] ordering him to return forthwith to [illegible] his headquarters and asking if the words attributed to him by newspapers in connection with the Caffarel affair were correctly reported. The newspapers [illegible] that Boulanger informed a reporter that he never doubted but that the [illegible] of General Caffarel was sinister to him self. He stated that he defied the most minute inquiry into his conduct, and said if he had been minister of war [illegible] General Caffarel had avowed his guilt to him he would have offered him a revolver with which to blow his brains out. General Boulanger in reply to General Ferron's telegram, said: "I have [illegible] [illegible] the newspapers attribute [illegible] them to me."

Paris, October 13.—General Ferron has sent another telegram to Boulanger, demanding a categorical reply to the charges against him.

General Boulanger telegraphed General Ferron that he did use the language attributed to him by the newspapers.

General Caffarel will be deprived of his decoration of the Legion of Honor. His pension, granted for 30 years service in the army, will be reduced from [illegible] to 1500 francs.

London, October 14.—The Standard's correspondent at Paris announces the arrest of General Boulanger.

Train Reach [illegible] Limits.

Chicago, [illegible] October 13.—Mayor Roche has directed the police [illegible] to summarily suppress George Francis Train and not permit him to speak again. If Train makes any further demonstrations he is to be taken to the station and kept there until he can be legally examined and adjudged insane and committed to a lunatic asylum.

Chicago, October 13.—Despite Mayor Roche's notice Train announced his intention of delivering another lecture in the West Twelfth Street Turner hall tonight. When the audience assembled, however, it was learned that the lecturer had departed for Springfield. He left behind him several considerable documents addressed to the mayor, chief of police and others, in which he reiterates [illegible] [illegible] him, etc.

Later to-night it was learned that Train had not left the city at all, but was [illegible] calmly at the house of his friend, Editor Devanes. A [illegible] [illegible] suits against the city of Chicago.

A Newspaper Joke.

Minneapolis, Minn., October [illegible] The excitement occasioned by the appearance in the Minneapolis Tribune on the morning after President Cleveland's visit, of an editorial containing severe strictures on the administration [illegible] for votes, culminated to-night when Mr. A. J. Blethen, proprietor of the Tribune, was burned in effigy by a [illegible] by Mayor Ames of this city.

The exceptions taken to the editorial were based principally on language used with reference to Mrs. Cleveland. Mr. Blethen regards the affair as a joke on Mayor Ames and the crowd, as he kept any business kept him away from the Tribune office on Tuesday night and he knew nothing whatever of the article until it appeared Wednesday morning.

A Cashier's Shortage.

Stafford Springs, Conn., October 13.—Excitement over the downfall of the Stafford Springs National bank continues to run very high. United States National Bank Examiner Forman says the shortage grows larger and larger. Later investigation he said reveals the fact that the deficit is $80,000, but there is no doubt it is in excess of this amount. Aside from the above, bad debts amount to $75,000 in addition to what is recorded in the books in the way of notes, making an aggregate of over $175,000.

Stafford Springs, Conn., October 13.—Bank Examiner Forman continued his investigation into the affairs of the wrecked bank to-day. He had informed the comptroller of the currency that a receiver should be appointed at once. It is probable that very little of the $200,000 capital will be left. It has been discovered that the defaulting [illegible] of the stolen funds to one of New York's stock brokers [illegible]

A Railroad [illegible]

Concord, N. H., October 13.—The senate this morning passed the Hazen bill, or Boston and Maine railroad bill, about which such a scandal has been raised, by a vote of 16 to 8. The bill permits the lease to the Boston and Maine railroad of the Boston and Lowell road, and its New Hampshire system.

Overruling the Coroner.

Dublin, October 13.—The inspector general of constables has issued an order suspending the execution of the coroner's warrants for the arrest of Inspector Brown, Rice and others against whom a verdict of murder was rendered at Mitchellstown yesterday, pending appeal to quash the finding of the jury.

CALL FOR REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE REPUBLICAN COUNTY CENTRAL COMMITTEE, EL PASO CO., COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Sept. 29, 1887.

In pursuance of the action of the republican county central committee, a convention of the republican party of El Paso county is hereby called to meet in Court House hall, in Colorado Springs, on Saturday, the 22d day of October 1887, at 1 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of nominating candidates for the several offices to be filled by the people of said county, at the general election to be held on Tuesday, the 8th day of November, 1887, as follows:

One county clerk.
One county [illegible].
One county [illegible].
One county [illegible].
One county commissioner.
One county surveyor.
One county superintendent of schools.
One county coroner.

And for the transaction of such other business as may [illegible] before said convention.

The several [illegible] are entitled to the following delegates:

[illegible]

A. A. McGOVNEY, Ch'n.

FRANK L. ROWNEY, Sec'y.

It is a matter of regret that our state law prevents any vote on the question of putting in a [illegible] at the next municipal election. We presume that there are few now who do not see the necessity of such a system. It is of vital importance that the whole matter be in such a shape when the election occurs that then in case it carries there shall be no delay in executing the wish of the voters. The council could have its plans in perfect shape and make conditional orders for pipe and [illegible] contracts for work. Then there will be no need of two or three months delay in beginning work.

The New York Sun has advanced a very curious argument in favor of the use of alcoholic beverages by an examination of the customs of the different nations. It concludes those who consume [illegible] at all will be found at the foot of the scale of power and progress and those who drink the most will be found at the top. The Chicago Tribune draws attention very justly to the fact that the whiskey drinking and the power or weakness of [illegible] have not the relation of [illegible] and effect. The best way to judge of the effect on nations is to judge of the effect on individuals. There are few people hardy enough to assert that an individual is likely to be successful in life because of hard drinking. It is a pretty well established rule that success in life depends on temperance at least, if not on total abstinence.

The Hon. Henry W. Hobson, United States district attorney for Colorado, has received the additional appointment of special United States district attorney for all the western country between here and the Pacific coast. This is a high mark of confidence which the attorney general of the United States shows in Mr. Hobson's [illegible] ability. He has already been appointed to oversee the management of land cases in Utah. He has shown in the management of such cases in Colorado such resistance to all social and political influences that have been used to divert him from the path of duty that it is quite safe to assume that the government is in earnest in its prosecutions. It is a great compliment to so young a man that his character and ability warrant his appointment to such high trusts.

Just how Mr. Randall's views on tariff or any kindred subject are looked upon with a good deal of interest. At an agricultural fair in Illinois he gave the following views regarding the agricultural wealth and the relative between agriculture and manufacturing industries.

To-day the United States in agricultural wealth and [illegible] ahead of all the civilized countries, the income reaching, according to an undisputed authority [illegible] cattle, forestry, etc. [illegible] a year. This is a [illegible] one which, while aroused [illegible] should prove an incentive to greater results. There remains yet much to be done. To stand still is to be left behind in the race. What we want we must retain and gain more, and to do so we must establish the most scientific methods, which can be most effectively and surely promoted by such organizations of farmers as this [illegible] [illegible] to a great degree by the practice of those who live on the farm, which have been, I fear, too much [illegible]. I confess it is difficult to restrain the impulse to launch out into praise of the health and wealth and peaceful virtues which attend the farmer's life. But it has already been done, and in a manner that renders other attempts weak and tame. The master intellects of every age and clime have paid the richest tributes of their genius to agriculture as the sure foundation of national prosperity and as furnishing the most of all the enjoyments of life.

Permit me a [illegible] of the manufacturing interests to say that agriculture and manufacturing should go hand in hand, and I permit to all that they have done, for which we stand at the head of all nations in agricultural products and wealth.

[illegible] is the American people, as a mass, [illegible] no better housed, the industrious more protected, their wives and children better clothed and educated than the people of any other part of the world. Who would [illegible] to [illegible] the American [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] the American [illegible]

The [illegible] the [illegible] that the [illegible] is the condition of the country is very prosperous it is not true that this prosperity is due to our present system of tariff. [illegible] in spite of it. The stock men of the west are at present finding their stock on so cheap [illegible] [illegible] of the Mississippi valley [illegible] [illegible] or from foreign pays annually [illegible]

[illegible] American farmer [illegible] and an investment in labor saving machinery for plowing, cultivating and harvesting crops which the small farms of Europe do not permit of to any great extent. These are immense advantages which must be taken into consideration in any discussion of the causes of the prosperity of the farmers. The most that can be said for protection is that it has aided in bringing the market nearer to the producer. Whenever this is done it is an undeniable advantage. But when we consider the fact that protection increases the cost of everything the farmer uses, the advantage is wholly or more than counter balanced.

PARIS CORR. [illegible]

It is a long time since we have heard of any deaths being caused by bears in France, but a few days ago a little shepherd boy was killed by one of these wild animals in the mountains of Savoy. The villagers decided on getting up a hunt after the bear, and on the following day they started in search but without effect. On their return home they, however, perceived that the child's mother who had insisted on joining their party with a gun, had been left behind. It was now night, but some of the people went back and scoured the woods in every direction.

When day dawned they found the poor woman lying in a secluded spot, her dress in rags, her arms crushed and her face covered with blood. At her side was a huge bear, quite dead, its head smashed by a discharge from the gun which she had taken with her. The villagers, after binding up her [illegible] carried her with many precautions to her home, and the sufferer is progressing so satisfactorily that the hope is entertained that she may eventually recover. But the woman has not yet been [illegible] an account of her struggle with the bear which had killed her child. It must have been a fearful encounter, and no [illegible] [illegible] astonishment at the courage which she displayed. It seems clear that after they abandoned the search the mother had continued it, without giving them even a hint as to her intention.

Paying where he did not subscribe.

Providence Journal.

It is not always an advantage to bear a striking resemblance to another man, even if he is a good looking one and rich in the bargain, and as a matter of fact such a resemblance may often result in serious complications. A gentleman of this city has just gone through such an experience, and now he vows he will let his hair grow long and wear [illegible] [illegible] if necessary, but he will not be taken for some other fellow again or [illegible]

[illegible] a short time in the city was soliciting subscriptions for the purpose of making certain repairs upon the church he was connected with. He met with much success, and finally remembered that he had not yet interviewed one of his most earnest friends. A few days later he met, or thought he met, this gentleman on the street, and determined to ask him for a subscription. After the usual salutations the clergyman said: "My dear sir, several of my friends have advised me to apply to you for aid in our noble work, and," [illegible] calling him by the name of the other member of the church who resembled him, "they think you will give us $100." The gentleman who is something of a humorist saw a chance to play a joke on his friend, and he replied: "Certainly! With pleasure; you can put me down for $100."

A few days passed and the clergyman thought he would call upon his generous member and collect the money. He accordingly went to the office of the man whose name he had on his list and found him in. "Good day Mr. [illegible]," said the clergyman, "I was going by so I thought I would stop in and get the money you so kindly subscribed."

"Money! What money?" asked the astonished merchant. "Why, the $100 you put your name down for last Tuesday." For a few seconds the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] on something [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] the minister [illegible] But his [illegible] put down his name for the amount and forgotten all about it. Rather than confess his weakness before his pastor he pulled out his check book, filled out a blank for $100 and paid it over to the unsuspecting divine. The perpetrator of the joke heard of the affair a few days later and thought it was too good to keep, so he told a few friends, and it was not long before it reached the ears of the real subscriber. Whenever the two friends meet now the one who paid says to the other who got up the joke: "Say, it's a good joke, but I think you ought to give me $50 and divide the expense." The expense has not yet been divided, the church is $100 richer and the clergyman does not know the true inwardness of how he got his money.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER [illegible] 1887.

[illegible] Colorado Springs.

[illegible] Miss Rosa Davenport, who was [illegible] studied music [illegible] of Denver [illegible]

Miss Edith Hart of Denver, daughter of [illegible] Hart, delighted [illegible] her song [illegible] with MMe. A [illegible] of these numbers were [illegible] with [illegible] and accuracy which are only gained by the most patient study and practice. Miss Hart [illegible] recently returned to Denver from [illegible] course of musical study abroad. She ranks among the leading [illegible] of Denver, and [illegible] will not be the only opportunity the her admirers in this city will have of hearing her.

But the interest in the concert centers in the appearance and performance of Miss Kate Kieffer, who has just returned from a year's study at Leipzig, Germany. Miss Kieffer has come back to Colorado Springs a finished artist. Her rendition of the difficult "Allegro Motto Vivace" of Mendelssohn evoked the most enthusiastic applause of the evening, which was again repeated, when she rendered an exquisite number "Rest" "Gondola Lied." As a violinist of exceptional talent and culture she has a bright and promising future before her. Her success will be a source of much gratification and delight to her many friends in Colorado Springs.

The concert to be given at the First Methodist church this evening will introduce to the Colorado Springs public several artists of exceptional ability. Professor Pfefferkorn occupies a position among the leading pianists of the west. Professor Shaw, the vocalist who will assist him, stands at the head of his profession. Mrs. Bowler is a recent arrival from Bangor, Maine, where she was regarded as one of the best vocalists in the city. Tickets for the concert are on sale at the Antlers hotel and at the Colorado and Stationery store. We append the excellent [illegible] of the concert as published in Wednesday morning's issue:

"Called Back."

The Denver News, in speaking of the production of "Called Back" at the [illegible] Monday evening, says:

"There are few plays to-day that are so intensely thrilling as the "Called Back" which Mr. Joseph Grismer is giving at the opera house this week, and it is proper to add few are so well acted. [illegible] a story that is at once weird [illegible] and fascinating [illegible] Mr. Hyde and even this later work does not present the dramatic possibilities that are suggested in every page of Conway's work. Mr. Grismer's dramatization has gripped the extraordinary story with a much more accurate and skillful appreciation than that which afflicted the ill-fated adaptation produced by Kate Claxton and he has wrought out of the same [illegible] a play that will live as long as [illegible] and longer than most theatrical events do. His play is true to the [illegible] and as cleverly constructed as "The Ticket of Leave Man"—one play that will hold its own. The language of Mr. Grismer's play is as clear and forcible as that of some of the standard [illegible] and the scenes of the book are produced so faithfully as to recall every detail of the original.

GIFT OF A VANDERBILT.

A Building Presented to the New York College of Physicians and Surgeons.

[illegible] the block bounded by [illegible] Tenth avenues [illegible] and [illegible] Street, New York city, now stands the largest medical college building the world, and the old College of Physicians and Surgeons, after [illegible] years of existence and occupying [illegible] different locations, is fixed at last thanks to the liberality of the late W. H. Vanderbilt and the added [illegible] He donated [illegible] this college building [illegible] Mrs. William D. [illegible] Sloane [illegible] the Maternity [illegible] beds for [illegible] Vanderbilt [illegible] of September the main building was thrown open to the [illegible] the old college, nearly 500 [illegible] Mayor Hewitt [illegible] and in the evening [illegible] a grand banquet by [illegible] formally [illegible] new building [illegible]

It is the main portion of the [illegible] that this college building the world excels it in structure [illegible] few equal it. The main entrance is on Fifty-ninth street and the structure is an imposing one of brick, the southern wing is [illegible] feet, the centre is 96x43 feet and the middle section 99x57 feet, the two wings following back at the cross streets leave an inner court. The area covered is 15,428 feet. On the North avenue end of the front is a bronze place [illegible] into the wall, with inscription specifying date and donor, and elsewhere are tablets giving the main facts of its history. One of these reads thus:

Located first College since its foundation [illegible]
No. [illegible] Robinson street, 1807 [illegible]
No. 12 Magazine street, 1809 [illegible]
No. 3 Barclay street, 1813-1837
No. 67 Crosby street, 1837-56
No. [illegible] East Twenty [illegible] street, 1856-87
No. 447 West Fifty-ninth street, 1887.

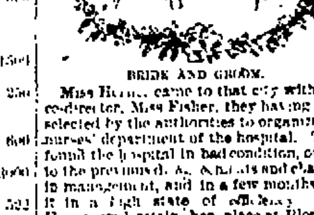

From the center of the Fifty-ninth street front one ascends a short flight of steps to the main hall, which is floored with small tiles and the sides slabbed with polished marble. To the left is the reception room and general gathering room for [illegible] then the study room and all the [illegible] departments of the first floor [illegible] entirely to skeletons. Above are the lecture room, recitation [illegible] professors' private room, etc., and above all the dissecting [illegible] 140 feet long and 36 feet wide, and thickly set with iron [illegible] with slate tops. Each [illegible] is large enough for five or [illegible] and the [illegible]. This room is thoroughly ventilated and so arranged as to be kept perfectly clean. In the [illegible] are revolving fans which drive the fresh air into every room, and the whole building is lighted by the electric light. Every detail of a medical college is provided for with the best appliances of modern science, and the building is one of the glories of the city.

SENATOR HAWLEY'S SWEETHEART.

Miss Edith A. H[illegible], a Noted [illegible] Nurse.

Senator Joseph R. Hawley is going to get married and the accidental public is mightily interested in the matter, for the case has all the elements of a romance. Not only is the lady an object of great personal interest and a real heroine—a woman with a history—but the acquaintance and courtship was in itself not a [illegible] Of course the [illegible] in such [illegible] is of no consequence, even if he is a senator or president; the public wants to know all about the prospective bride, and in this case there is quite enough of character and incident.

Miss Edith A. Horner is an English woman but 30 years old, and yet as an organizing nurse she has won great honors. After achieving some reputation as hospital organizer in England, she was chosen director of nurses to accompany [illegible] There her bravery and ability, her gentleness and still more her endurance and devotion to duty were so conspicuous and valuable that she received high honors and was awarded [illegible] by various societies. A surprising fact is that she returned from this arduous campaign with health and strength almost unimpaired, and is today notable for her youthful appearance and clear, rosy complexion. She is above the medium height, with [illegible] chestnut hair, slightly inclined to curl. Her form and manner are quite attractive. Gen. Hawley met her during his visit to England last summer, and their engagement was formally concluded and announced during the constitutional centennial at Philadelphia.

BRIDE AND GROOM.

Miss Horner came to that city with her co-director, Miss Fisher, they having been selected by the authorities to organize the nurses' department of the hospital. They found the hospital in bad condition, owing to the previous [illegible] and changes in management, and in a few months had it in a high state of efficiency. Miss Horner will retain her place at Blockley hospital, Philadelphia, till November, and the wedding will take place soon afterwards. It is scarcely necessary to state that the "happy man" is the able and eloquent senator from Connecticut, in the prime of life, popular and respected, with fair chances for the highest honors.

In the manufacture of piano keys the teeth of 50,000 elephants are used every year.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

Jenny Lind is reported dying.

Indications for Colorado: Warmer, fair weather, light to fresh southerly winds.

The United States grand jury at Cincinnati has now under consideration the Fidelity bank cases.

The bill permitting re-election of the president after having passed the Mexican senate was yesterday approved by the house of deputies.

Chamberlain visited Colerain yesterday, where he received a number of liberal unionist delegates from Derry, Antrim and Tyrone. He made an address of the usual nature.

The steamer City of Pueblo, of the Alexandre line, has been sold to the Pacific Mail Steamship Co. The steamer City of Atlanta has been chartered to take her place on the New York and Mexican line.

Know all Men by These Presents.

It has come to our knowledge that because of our enormous sales of Wall Paper that a number of our competitors in order to make a sale have resorted to cutting the price below the standard rate. Now, be it known, that we will not be undersold by anyone in our line and from henceforth we shall sell Paper Wall Paper for 25c per single roll. Gilts for 50c per double roll and upward. All other grades in like proportion. It will pay you to come and see us and we shall take pleasure in showing you these Papers whether you buy or not.

We also have for sale the very best brands of
